BCLI Launches New Website

for immediate release

Vancouver, 15 October 2008—The British Columbia Law Institute welcomes viewers to its new website. The redevelopment of the BCLI's website was made possible by funding from the Law Foundation of British Columbia, as part of its initiative to prepare for the coming launch of British Columbia's new public legal information and information portal, Clicklaw. "The BCLI is grateful for the Law Foundation's support," said BCLI Chair Ron Skolrood, "and looks forward to using its new website as a means to stimulate public interest in law reform."

The website has been completely redesigned in a modern, accessible style. It consolidates materials from the BCLI's BC Law Reform Group, Canadian Centre for Elder Law, International Law Reform Group, and Canadian Journal on Elder Law. The website also includes publications of the Law Reform Commission of British Columbia and a searchable database of law reform publications from around the world.

The BCLI invites comments on its new website and suggestions for its further development.

The British Columbia Law Institute strives to be a leader in law reform by carrying out the best in scholarly law reform research and writing and the best in outreach relating to law reform.
